TePūkenga

Te Pūkenga Work Based Learning marketing and advertising guidelines This is a guide for Te Pūkenga Work Based Learning (WBL) business divisions as they transition into Te Pūkenga brand.

These templates are in use until further notice.

It is important to follow these guidelines to ensure you are representing Te Pūkenga brand clearly, and to the best of your ability.

We are wanting to bring our brands together so that they're recognisable and seen as a collective family.

It is noted that similarities are inevitable during this transition phase. Right now, it is not so much about looking new, but rather the aim is to create awareness that something new is coming as we collectively move closer to Te Pūkenga. The use of these guidelines will help bring WBL and Te Pūkenga together as a unified brand.

Digital and print templates

The templates cater to the majority of required digital and print sizes. They have the ability to be resized and adjusted accordingly, if required.

Digital and print templates

Presentation templates

These templates are only to be used in presentation formats such as PowerPoint for maximum text space.

Template alterations

Expanding space

Expanding

Templates can be expanded from the flat end to fill more or less of the canvas with Te Pūkenga green gradient, dependent on composition of page assets.

Scaling

The templates can be scaled up and down so long as X and Y dimensions are proportionally scaled.

In some cases the template may need both a rescale and space expansion.

Please use this as a last resort and first check if there is a more appropriate template that has been provided before using these alteration techniques.

Moving back layer in small, narrow spaces (template provided)

Template use

Templates can be mirrored accordingly to allow for logo placement in either bottom/top left, bottom/top right, or bottom centered, in line with Te Pūkenga Brand Guidelines.

The supplied designs and gradients must not be altered unless it is to expand from the squared end.

Dual and triple logos

The multiple logo template caters to both landscape and portrait logos.

When selecting a multiple logo style it is important to prioritise legibility and size for the intended canvas dimension.

Not all logos will fit the provided spaces perfectly so please use the spacing and padding guides to maintain a balanced hierarchy.

Please use white, black, or Te Pūkenga green versions of your logo when applying to the multiple lock-up, making sure all elements are the same colour.

The dividing line weight is fixed and will scale accordingly.

Dual and triple logos with URL

The multiple logo template caters to both landscape and portrait logos. The URL must be Open Sans medium and at least 9pt.

When selecting a multiple logo format it is important to prioritise legibility and visibility for the intended canvas dimensions.

URL and contact details can alternatively be used in the body copy or as an address block below the body copy.

Please use white, black, or Te Pūkenga dark green versions of your logo when applying to the multiple lock-up, making sure all elements are the same colour.

Logo use

Refer to Te Pūkenga Brand Guidelines for additional size and placement restrictions.

Logo use

Do not alter the composition of the logo, partition line weight, font, or the scale proportions of each element.

Do not shrink a long URL below 9pt

Text

Text is to follow Te Pūkenga brand guideline heirarchy and typefaces.

A gradient of dark to medium green should be added behind white text between 30-100% opacity (option of multiply effect). In instances where a back image has enough empty space and contrast, a gradient is not necessary.

Canela Deck bold font should only be used for text above 24pt, medium above 16pt, and anything smaller should use Open Sans.

It is important to prioritise the legibility of text on the selected canvas.

Refer to Te Pūkenga Brand Guidelines for font sizing and hierarchy.

Font licensing

We need to be using the Canela Deck font across the network.

Due to our current make up, we need a number of licences:

Te Pükenga WBL will need a licence which covers all business divisions.

All ITOs will need their own licences.

You will need to purchase it from www. commercialtype.com/catalog/canela/canela_ deck. You will need to include the number of workstations required to have the font. Canela Deck Bold and Medium are our chosen font weights.

Details are: Font and weights: Canela Deck Bold and Canela Deck Medium Foundry: Commercial Type Licence: Desktop use only

If required, Te Pūkenga can cover the costs. You'll just need to purchase and invoice the costs to Te Pükenga alongside a receipt. Any questions on this, please get in touch with marketing@tepukenga.ac.nz

Text on image use

Prioritise the legibility of text on the selected canvas. Do not adjust any of the colours or fonts.

If you are using a busy image, increase the gradient opacity or consider changing to a different template (page 18). This is for accessibility reasons.

You can use the 'multiply' effect on the gradient if it is more fitted and creates a clear text contrast against your image.

Please avoid putting text over faces or heads.

Text on colour

Prioritise the legibility of text on the selected canvas. Do not adjust any of the colours or fonts.

Use only white or dark green text for headers, and white or black text for body copy.

*White text on light green isn't accessible when it's small and therefore should be used sparingly. Use Te Pūkenga primary colour palette for backgrounds

Do not block colour with colours outside of Te Pūkenga primary palette

Imagery

Choose from your strongest imagery, and consider options that leave enough space for the amount of text you are intending to layer.

Use the shadow gradient to increase text legibility.

Do not overly crop heads or faces, or put text over heads or carved figures. This is for cultural reasons.

Avoid stock imagery. If you do need to use stock be sure that the tone of your imagery reflects real people or Aotearoa New Zealand.

Imagery inspiration quote:

"Where the learning is shared and reciprocal. Between teacher and learner, employer and employee. Handing down. Weaving together."

Image space

In cases where imagery isn't as strong or does not fit the canvas, you can use the alternative templates to reduce image space.

It is recommended to keep headers short, however this template can also be used when headers are too long and your image can't accommodate.

Top expanded template where text won't work over image

Image space

Use these templates or techniques in difficult spaces to keep your imagery clear and text tidy. Using Te Pūkenga green to fit image in tight space

Image use

It is important to use high quality photography/imagery and to keep the template as clean and minimal as possible.

Cultural patterns

If you have a brand pattern that has cultural significance and importance it can be applied to imagery through an outlined overlay.

Before they're used in this new context it is important and is your responsibility to consult with your Māori and Pacific groups around the change in use of your patterns.

Te Pūkenga is a different brand to the one your patterns were designed for so contact your artist to ensure the purpose is still accurate and in alignment with their original intention and meaning.

Outlined pattern over image with 50% opacity

Cultural pattern use

It is important to keep your design within the custom space outside of the footer design.

A soft opacity outline is recommended unless it goes against the artist's guidelines.

Do not crop or use a pattern over faces or heads.

Be cautious and culturally considerate when applying your pattern.

Audio visual

End frames are to be added to the end of all video assets. Start frames are optional but recommended.

The template is a simple opacity fade-in/fade-out transition with a dual logo and CTA. This style should work across all asset sizes. Options three and four are for when a space is too small to display all logos at once.

Animation effects are minimal during this phase as Te Pūkenga creative is still in the works.

Use Open Sans Regular for any subtitles. Make sure that any subtitles are clear and easy to read on top of detailed footage.

Subsidiaries can continue to use their own licensed music tracks while Te Pūkenga creative is still underway.

300x250, 300x600, 729x90, 970x250px, etc.

Option one: Start and end frame (recommended)

Audio visual

It is recommended but optional to re-colour video graphics to Te Pūkenga primary palette.

1920x1080px

Option one: Start and end frame with re-colour (recommended)

Button style

The button design is minimal during this phase as Te Pūkenga creative is still in the works.

Keep button text size above 9pt.
