Eliminating the Public Service Gender Pay Gap

The Ministry and State Services Commission are in consultation with the PSA over the Gender Pay Gap Action Plan (the Action Plan). Ministers Genter and Hipkins launched a high-level overview of the Action Plan on 26 July, as this was as far as our agreement with PSA had reached at that time. We are now moving to agree the details of the Action Plan. Officials met with PSA on 14 August to begin this process. At the same time we are progressing some of the early deliverables. For instance, at the 14 August meeting we discussed a proposal to jointly support agencies to develop their next gender pay gap action plans. We also briefed you on 9 August on the establishment of the Taskforce that will take over this work. We will brief Ministers as we make further progress with the PSA and are aiming to have a full agreement with PSA to put to joint Ministers by the end of September.

Safety

Review of the Protected Disclosures Act

On Monday 13 August, Cabinet agreed to review the Protected Disclosures Act 2000 and release a consultation document seeking feedback on options for change. The review aims to ensure the Act supports a clear and effective regime for speaking up about serious wrongdoing in the workplace. Minister Hipkins will report back with final policy proposals in April 2019.

This is a gendered issue: international research highlights gendered differences regarding protected disclosures, including women's increased fear of using whistle-blower channels, and heightened fear of retaliation in response to disclosures. It will be important to ensure that any legislative change does not lessen protections for women experiencing harassment or bullying in the workplace (including sexual harassment). The paper notes that Minister Hipkins' final policy proposal in April 2019 will set out the gender implications of the recommended approach as the review proceeds, including providing further comment on final policy proposals. SSC is leading the review.

Sexual harassment

We have agreed with MBIE and the Multi-Agency Team on Family Violence and Sexual Violence to host a workshop in August with relevant government agencies. The workshop will develop a cross-government view of policy, legislation and activities underway to prevent and respond to sexual harassment in the workplace. In October, we will jointly brief you, Minister Lees-Galloway and Under-Secretary Logie on the outcome of this work.
